Dear Dr. Nirenberg:

I am intrigued at your achievement in "Cracking the genetic code."

My investigation in the area of genealogy has brought a conviction that there must be a scientific reason why the descendants of the ancient Roman-Norman stock who fled England brought such contribution to culture.

I enclose a copy of the concluding chapter of my manuscript along with other copies having a pertinent connection.

Incidentally, my grandson graduated with honors from the University of California and is pursuing advanced studies at the University of Wisconsin in biochemistry.

I am confident that further research by the geneticists will reveal the impact of dominant genes of heredity.

Cordially,

Claude D. Stout
